

What some of our members say about CBC:

"I would highly recommend joining CBC. I have found many rewards, both personally and professionally, in my 35 years of participation."

Richard F. Jagoe
Tomlinson-Hawley-Patterson

"Over the years, we have been party to countless conversations about job-related issues. We've always known that we can count on CBC members to offer their professional expertise and provide resource recommendations for virtually any issue that arises in the construction process in a non-confrontational atmosphere."

Susan Wing
Wing's Testing & Balancing Co., Inc.

"Interviewing student candidates that have decided to enter the construction and design fields as their vocation has given me a sense of gratification in awarding scholarship aid to these very qualified students, but even a higher degree of comfort and satisfaction in knowing that the industry will be in good hands in the future."

John Ruffalo, III, AIA
John Ruffalo III, Architects, PC

"The Industry Practice Committee (IPC) is a great way to test the market. The diversity of the group and its professionalism always brings fresh and exciting views to industry issues and problems. Set in a round table format the group never fails to bring new thoughts and ideas to some of the new and life long issues and problems that continually plague the industry. The committee's openness, candor, and respect for all, allows for very enlightening discussions and sometimes conclusions."

Chris-Philip Onofrio
Langan Engineering & Environmental Services

"The CBC Golf Outing has raised over $300,000 for Habitat for Humanity of Greater New Haven over the years. It's also a great chance to network."

Robert Vitelli
Blakeslee Prestress, Inc.

"CBC meetings and committees are a great resource for discovering trends in the construction industry. Its members are a great treasure of information about almost any topic."

What CBC can do for you...

As a member of the Connecticut Building Congress (CBC), you will have access to information and people vital to your business. CBC is an active organization with representatives from every facet of the building industry – architects, engineers, owners, attorneys, bankers, contractors, developers, consultants and suppliers, meeting monthly with keynote speakers to discuss mutual interests, share business information and leads, and learn about events that shape our industry.

Industry Information Exchange

CBC's Industry Practice Committee (IPC) plays a key role in keeping members informed about the changes in the industry. IPC monthly meetings are designed to improve the quality of performance within the construction industry. Challenges and issues are confronted in an informal atmosphere through open dialogue, and results are published in Keystone, CBC's quarterly newsletter.

Community Outreach

Each year, CBC awards scholarships to deserving high school seniors who are the future of our industry. The CBC Scholarship Fund grants scholarships of up to $2,000 per year to college students studying in areas of benefit to the construction industry, including architecture, engineering, construction management, and construction technology. Special events such as the annual Robert J. LeFloch Memorial Golf Outing in the Fall help fund these scholarships.

Professional and Personal Growth

Our networking and social events bring new opportunities to your company and provide the chance to share in a fun environment. Whether you attend a program or social event, or become more active by joining a committee, CBC will provide you with the resources and opportunities to help you grow and increase your value in your firm.
